Every day, some 50 children, and adults visit Dios es Amor's education centre.

Many of these children come from with big problems. They mainly live in together with their mother and a number of siblings. At es Amor they at least get the opportunity to escape from their monotonous daily routine for a few hours.

The slum children can expect nothing from the state. Unlike here, the state provides no crèches or education. So Dios es Amor does it, and makes and drawing materials available.

For many of these children from the slums it is important to learn how to on the task in hand. It strengthens their self-awareness when they learn how to make something by using their hands.

A group have gathered around Maria and are listening to a Something these children cannot do at home. Their have no time for it as they are pre-occupied with providing sustenance for the family.

Little increase self-awareness and enable the children to test their physical abilities. Children need activity. It is not only good for the health but is also great fun.

The teenagers have their own room in which they can do their without being disturbed. Dios es Amor tries to support their personal and educational, pays for the materials the schools require, and makes it possible for them to go to a school.

So that they will be able to a job later on, Peruvian children have to learn how to operate computers. For them, seeking information on the or sending e-mails is also part of their daily routine.

A cup of and a bread roll before going home – that always does them good. For some it will be they get to eat before the next day.

Poverty and shortages abound in the world of the "viviendas precarias" – the very housing, to which they are returning for a few hours.
